Lily Lim practices intellectual property law, focusing on trial litigation in federal district court and before the U.S. International Trade Commission, representing U.S. and international clients whose technologies include integrated circuits, satellite technologies, wireless devices, software, and medical devices.

Ms. Lim has prevailed at trial and on appeal in cases involving patent, copyright, and trade secret disputes. She has also provided strategic pre-litigation counseling regarding negotiating patent and software licenses and international manufacturing and marketing agreements.

Prior to joining private practice, Ms. Lim served as a law clerk to the Honorable S. Jay Plager of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit. She also worked as a spacecraft navigation engineer at NASA's Jet Propulsion Laboratory, where she worked on the Magellan Project, which successfully mapped the surface of Venus.
