

Josh Mackower, MD
General Partner
NEA

Josh has worked with NEA since 1995 and is now a General Partner on their healthcare team leading the medtech/healthtech practice. Josh is the Founder & Executive Chairman of ExploraMed, a medical device incubator creating 8 companies. Transactions from the ExploraMed portfolio include Acclarent, acquired by J&J, EndoMatrix, acquired by C.R. Bard & TransVascular, acquired by Medtronic. Other ExploraMed/NEA ventures include NeoTract, Moximed, Nuelle and NC7. Josh serves on the faculty of the Stanford University Medical School as a Consulting Professor of Medicine and is Co-Founder of Stanford's Biodesign Innovation Program. Josh serves on the board of DOTS Devices, Eargo, ExploraMed, Intrinsic Therapeutics, NeoTract, Moximed, Nuelle, NC7 and Coravin. Josh holds over 300 patents and patent applications. He received an MBA from Columbia University, an MD from the NYU School of Medicine, and a bachelor's degree in Mechanical Engineering from MIT.