

Valentina Bratu

Valentina Bratu received her law degree from Danubius Law School in Romania and her LL.M. in Comparative Constitutional Law from Central European University in Hungary, Budapest. She recently submitted for defense her doctoral thesis on the concentration in the electronic media and its effects on media pluralism at the Legal Studies Department of Central European University. The thesis is a comparative study between Europe and the United States. Her research interests are freedom of speech, media law and competition law.