Marketa Trimble is an associate professor at William S. Boyd School of Law, University of Nevada, Las Vegas, where she teaches after having received master's and doctoral degrees from Stanford Law School. In her research she focuses on intellectual property and issues at the intersection of intellectual property and private international law/conflict of laws, two areas that have led her to the investigation of various cyberlaw problems. Using her research and experience from law schools in the U.S. and Europe, her expertise from the European Union and European governments, and her foreign language abilities, Professor Trimble conducts comparative and empirical work in her areas of interest.
