

Linda T. Alepin is Founding Director of the Global Women's Leadership Network (www.GWLN.org) and Dean's Professor of Entrepreneurship at Santa Clara University. Linda has been a pioneer and visionary woman leader all her career. After graduating from Stanford, she spent 30+ years in the information technology industry, rising to officer of a F200 company and CEO of an early Internet startup.

She has spent the last decade immersed in developing leaders around the globe. She was principle in a leadership consulting company (Center for New Futures) that worked extensively in the biotech industry.

Through GWLN she has trained more than 80 women NGO leaders from around the world. Linda started the Leavey School of Business Global Fellows program. She teaches the spring and fall practica that prepare undergraduates for their service experiences in developing countries.

Linda has spoken on leadership at WITI, PBWC, on PBS TV, at the Grace Hopper Celebration, for the World Federation of Engineers, etc. She is a recipient of the Santa Clara County Commission on the Status of Women's award for contributions to the equality of women and the YWCA's Tribute to Women in International Industry.