

Garry W. Jenkins is Associate Dean for Academic Affairs, an Associate Professor of Law, and Co-Director of the Program on Law and Leadership at The Ohio State University Moritz College of Law. He regularly teaches Business Associations, the Law of Nonprofit Organizations, and Lawyers as Leaders, an innovative leadership development course for law students. Prior to entering academia, he was chief operating officer and general counsel of The Goldman Sachs Foundation, an associate with Simpson Thacher & Bartlett in New York City, and a law clerk on the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit. He earned a J.D. from Harvard Law School, where he was editor-in-chief of the Harvard Civil Rights-Civil Liberties Law Review, a M.P.P. from the Harvard Kennedy School, and a B.A. from Haverford College.